If you've ever dreamed of owning a Château, this is exactly how you'd picture it. A charming winding lane leads through the estate to the elevated residence, complete with turrets and a balcony. Nestled in a peaceful location just outside the village of St Maixent de Beugne in Deux-Sèvres, near the Vendée border, this stunning property offers

DESCRIPTION

The house was completed in 1874 and is set over 3 floors, plus the cellars, which cover the entire footprint of the main house. There is an attached garage.

The main drive leads to a parking area sufficient for several cars. There is a second entrance from a rear lane.

The house is currently laid out as follows;

Main floor; Oak parquet flooring throughout except for the kitchen, which has a tiled floor.

The main door is on the rear facade and opens into the entrance vestibule, (17m²).

The kitchen is immediately to the right, with a large open fireplace and an ancient stone potager (30m²). It has some fitted cupboards and work tops. Door and steps to the side garden and doors to the rear garden.

Double doors through to the dining room, 32.5m² with 3 large windows and a marble fireplace.

Small reception room 17m² with a glazed door onto the stone terrace and stairs, leading down to the garden.

Lounge 32m², with 3 windows, marble fireplace and character ceiling rose.

These rooms all boast wonderful views over the main garden. With large double doors connecting them, they create a seamless flow between spaces, making them ideal for entertaining guests or hosting gatherings.

To the rear, an office of 18m² with a double-glazed window.

Enclosed hall with main staircase 10m²

WC, 2.7m²

Lovely curving staircase leads to the first floor

1st Floor

Landing 3.5m²

Bedroom 1, 18.5m², plus a small library room 1.1m²
